Update from the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors

Christine Laine, CSE Liaison

The International Committee of Medical Journal Editors (ICMJE) last met in April 2010; two issues are particularly worthy of note by the Council of Science Editors.

CSE members may also be interested to know that the ICMJE released its revised uniform conflict-of-interest disclosure form in July 2010. The form and an editorial describing it are available at www.icmje.org. The ICMJE member journals will be using the form and encourage nonmember journals to do the same. Anyone using the form who has comments should send them to the ICMJE using the “contact us” link on www.icmje.org.
