

Fuccillo Steps Down as InterViews Editor

Domenic A Fuccillo has retired as editor of CBE InterViews, a CBE Views column that he began in 1995. When InterViewed after submitting his final column, which ran in September, he offered the following:

Fuccillo: Domenic joined CBE in 1962 and began contributing articles to CBE Views a couple of years later. He served 2 terms as a member of the Editorial Board and then became contributing editor, primarily responsible for CBE InterViews, a name coined by former Editor Martha Tacker. InterViews covered a variety of topics, including the “grey literature”, science writing, copyright, author-editor relations, teaching scientific writing, copyediting, editing abroad, editing education articles, and Internet journals. Guest interviewers took over when Domenic served an editing assignment in the Philippines last year. A perpetual student, he is pursuing an MEd in educational technology, a task consuming so much “retirement” time that he asked Barbara [Gastel] to be relieved of editing InterViews.

The Council of Biology Editors thanks Dom for all he brought to CBE InterViews. It looks forward to his continuing to contribute in other ways when his time permits.

For readers who wish to consult past Inter-Views, a list accompanies this article. Thanks to graduate-student intern Wendy Lawrence for compiling information in the list.

CBE Views Editor Barbara Gastel hopes to keep publishing CBE InterViews in coming months as an occasional guest column edited by graduate-student interns and others. Readers who are interested in serving as guest InterViewers or who have InterView topics to propose should get in touch with Barbara (telephone 409-845-6887; fax 409-845-5408; e-mail b-gastel@tamu.edu).
