

News About Members

Katherine Arnold is now news editor of the Journal of the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Maryland. Previously she was deputy news editor.

Addeane Caelleigh has retired as editor of Academic Medicine as of the end of 2001. She will be a visiting scholar at George Washington School of Medicine in Washington, DC, in 2002. She will continue to consult with faculties and journals on publication issues. She can be reached at 8811 Clifford Avenue, Chevy Chase, MD 20815; telephone 240-497-0320; fax 240-497-1483; e-mail ac.scipub@erols.com.

Mary G Royer has been elected a fellow of the American Medical Writers Association. Royer is a freelance medical writer and editor in Ithaca, New York.

Diane Scott-Lichter is now director of publishing strategy at the American Cancer Society. She had been associate publisher in the Clinical Medicine Department of Elsevier Science. She can be reached at 1599 Clifton Road NE, Atlanta, GA 30329-4251; telephone 404-982-3684; fax 404-325-9341; e-mail Diane.Scott-Lichter@cancer.org.

Nancy D Taylor received the Golden Apple Award from the American Medical Writers Association (AMWA) at its 2001 annual conference. The award recognizes consistently outstanding leadership of AMWA workshops. Taylor was medical research writer, ethics and humanities, in the Department of Research, Division of Academic Services, Greenville (South Carolina) Hospital System until her recent retirement.

The Greater Chicago Area Chapter of the American Medical Writers Association awarded its 2001 Morris Fishbein Award, “for excellence in medical communication for health professionals”, to Roxanne K Young, editor of A Piece of My Mind: A New Collection of Essays from JAMA—The Journal of the American Medical Association and valued member of Science Editor’s staff.