

◆ 2003-2004 Council of Science Editors Board

Michael J Held was installed on 4 May as president of the Council of Science Editors for the 2003-2004 term. Held, a CSE member since 1990, has had a variety of leadership roles in the Council, including that of CSE treasurer and chair of the Finance Committee from 1997 to 2001. He is executive director of The Rockefeller University Press.

Michael J Held

Newly Elected

Richard Horton, editor of The Lancet, has been elected CSE vice president for 2003-2004. Horton, who joined the Council in 1994, has been a speaker and moderator at CSE annual meetings and has contributed to Council retreats. He has served on the annual-meeting Program Committee, the Editorial Policy Committee, and the Authorship Task Force.

Richard Horton

Diane Berneath Lang is the new secretary. Lang, a CSE member since 1994, is assistant director of publications—editorial at the Radiological Society of North America. She has taught in the CSE Short Course for Journal Editors and organized the Short Course for Manuscript Editors. Since 2002, she has been director of CSE short courses.

Margaret A Winker has been elected a director of CSE. Winker is a deputy editor of the Journal of the American

Diane Lang

Margaret Winker

Medical Association (JAMA) and Web editor for the online editions of JAMA and the nine AMA Archives Journals. She has served on the annual-meeting Program Committee and has spoken at CSE short courses and annual meetings.

Continuing on the Board

Faith McLellan, North American senior editor of The Lancet, has ascended from vice president to president-elect.

Paul Bozuwa, president, Dartmouth Journal Services, continues as treasurer.

Stephen Prudhomme, director of scientific publishing at the American Heart Association, continues as treasurer-elect.

Leesa D Bruce, senior director of publications at the Canadian Pharmacists Association, and Diane Scott-Lichter, publishing director of the American Cancer Society, continue as directors.

Annette Flanagan, managing senior editor of JAMA and director of JAMA programs, international activities, and editorial processing, remains on the board as immediate past president.