

Five Join Science Editor Board

Science Editor is delighted to welcome Emmanuel A Ameh, Cheryl Iverson, Kristen King, Theodore Wachs, and Stewart Wills to its Editorial Board.

Emmanuel A Ameh is assistant editor-in-chief of Annals of African Medicine. He has been deputy editor of the Nigerian Journal of Medicine and was the founding editor-in-chief of The Nigerian Journal of Surgical Research. A pediatric surgeon, he heads the Department of Surgery at Ahmadu Bello University, Zaria, Nigeria. In total, he is an author of more than 100 publications in peer-reviewed journals. He is lead editor of the forthcoming book Paediatric Trauma Care in Africa: A Practical Guide.

Emmanuel A Ameh

Cheryl Iverson has worked for more than 30 years for the JAMA/Archives Journals, American Medical Association, including 21 years as director of copyediting of JAMA and the Archives Journals and

Cheryl Iverson

6 years as managing editor and director of copyediting for the Archives Journals. She chaired the committees that wrote the eighth and ninth editions of the American Medical Association Manual of Style and chairs the committee preparing the 10th edition. She also has been secretary of CSE and associate editor of Science Editor.

Kristen King is a freelance writer-editor in Fredericksburg, Virginia. She has been a proofreader and copyeditor at the American Society of Clinical Oncology and also has newspaper and magazine experience. The recipient of a BA in English from Mary Washington College, she is pursuing a master of professional studies degree in publishing at George Washington University.

Kristen King

Theodore Wachs is managing editor of Mountain Research and Development. He also is publications editor and translator at the Centre for Development and Environment, Institute of Geography, University of Bern, Switzerland. Wachs, who has a PhD from the University of Illinois, has been a history teacher, a high-school coordinator at the International School of Bern, and an independent consultant and translator. His hobbies include creative writing.

Theodore Wachs

Stewart Wills has served as the online editor of Science since 2000. He has been editing and writing professionally for 25 years, both in staff positions and as a freelance. As a member of the 2004 CSE Annual Meeting Program Committee, he organized and chaired sessions on linking and online-site redesign, and he participated as a panelist in a session on online use statistics. He has a PhD in geology and geophysics from Columbia University.

Stewart Wills